ANTIQUES & VINTAGE ON THE BOULEVARD

There is one duke, one duchess, one shop, and one traveling show. The result of this eclectic mix is a rare and unique antique inventory. "People often visit our store and say, where did you find that? I've never seen something like that before," said Kate Van Theel, otherwise known as the Duchess of Junkness. Van Theel runs the business with her husband Tom, the Duke of Junkness. Their business includes both their Tecumseh storefront, Antiques and Vintage on the Boulevard, as well as their Traveling Vintage Market of Junkness.
"Our traveling show not only allows us to go out and reach new people, but it also allows us to go shopping for antiques from different regions. When you have 50 dealers shopping in the same area, you all have a lot of the same stuff. Our traveling shows allow us to go further out so not only are we reaching new customers, we are also pulling merchandise from a different pool.

Antiques are different in different areas. We love offering that to people." The Van Theels also use their traveling show to promote Tecumseh. "With the many antique shops, the brewery and wineries, and even boutique inns, Tecumseh has become an antiquing destination," she said.

The couple also makes sure to acquire meaningful local finds. Recently they were able to salvage many items from Tecumseh Products. People want to own a piece of their own history," said Van Theel

MORAN'S CONSIGNMENT

Affordable fashion with an upscale boutique feel — that's what you'll find in Stephanie Moran's highly successful consignment clothing shop. "I love resale," said Moran. "Just because someone doesn't want it anymore doesn't mean there is something wrong with it.
It just needs a new life. I love giving people a great deal on great clothes and helping my customers find a quality that they might not be able to afford brand new. You can come in here and get three to five pairs of jeans for the price of one new pair at the mall." The success of her boutique is due in part to the consistent quality of the clothing. Moran is highly selective about the clothing she accepts. No stains, holes or tears are allowed.

Moran's Consignment carries everything from athletic and casual wear to business casual. Customers will find designer and name brand labels in sizes zero to 22. In addition, they carry shoes, purses, jewelry, accessories and plenty of home decor. "I love what I do," said Moran, "and I love helping my customers.
Sometimes when you are shopping you need help, and we are here if you need a second opinion or an idea.
We want all of our customers to feel comfortable when they come in. We want them to have a unique and fun shopping experience. We are true believers in resale."

THE BEAD BOX

Housed in downtown Tecumseh's historic Ida B.
Chase Building and owned by Jim and Jane Lerma, The Bead Box and Vintage Cottage Antiques offers an eclectic mix of old and new. Patrons can shop and be inspired by the artful craftsmanship of estate jewelry as well as various vintage and antique items. Shoppers will find everything from old quilts to furniture to kitchen items to small and unique find from times gone by. However, this antique shop offers an unusual twist as the space also includes a full service bead store, giving customers the opportunity to both explore and appreciate the past as well as the opportunity to appreciate and create new items. The bead store offers unique beads and supplies, metal smith classes, and unique, handmade artisan jewelry. The bright, newly renovated store also sells soaps, candles, and various local and Michigan made products, creating a perfect balance of old and new. In addition to the retail store, a beautifully renovated rental suite is located above the shop, giving visitors the opportunity to turn Tecumseh into a weekend of antique shopping, beading, and creating memories. "Customer appreciation is so important to us," said owner Jane Lerma.
"We take this very seriously.
Whether you visit our store or stay in the suite, we work very hard to make everyone feel welcomed."
